These boots not made for walking

MICHELLE Aitchison is a cancer sufferer, specifically breast cancer. Aitchison is an outpatient at the Mater Hospital's Oncology Ward, and has bravely decided to take part in the Harley-Davidson Amazon Heart Thunder breast cancer charity ride from Sydney-Brisbane. The Caboolture Ulysses Club raised funding for Aitchison's trip and Caboolture Yamaha's Dave Lucas donated a helmet. The only item missing was a set of riding boots and that has been taken care of by Mark Wacker of Morgan and Wacker. If you're going to ride a Harley you should definitely have a good set of Harley boots. They arrived at the Mater Hospital and were presented on Morgan and Wacker's behalf by their fashion co-ordinator Jen Oliver. Aitchison has not ridden for many years so her trek from Sydney to Brisbane will be quite a marathon, but will raise funds for breast cancer sufferers' support programs.
